Presentation tips

Set up

Quiet space: Find a location free from distractions. Make sure everyone in your home knows you are presenting to ensure there are no interruptions.

Background: Find a spot with a plain background, free from clutter. If you are using the Zoom method, you can use a background.

Lighting: Make sure your face has some good lighting on it and that you are not too dark. Avoid light sources behind your head.

Camera: Position your camera to be as level with your face as possible. Avoid any weird angles and be sure to sit far enough away to keep your entire head in the camera window.

Audio: Wired headset if possible and try to limit background noises. Wireless headphones work but often let in more background noise and uses more resources of your computer to connect. If you're using your computer's built-in mic, you'll need to sit as close as possible to avoid any echo and muffled audio.

Exit out of all unnecessary apps and disable all notifications: Quit all software not related to giving your presentation. Software running in the background may interrupt your recording with pop-up or sound notifications. Close unneeded tabs and documents, turn phones and notifications to silent.

Presenting

Slow down: Attendees need time to interpret the data that you present. While you are very familiar with the data displayed, they are not.

Be yourself: Be yourself and present as though there is an audience. Eye contact is important, and you want to speak to your audience, not just recite your presentation to a computer.

Be consistent: Using a uniform background colour, text size, text colour, and font throughout your presentation makes it easier for the attendees to follow the flow of your ideas.

Practice: Set aside enough time to run through your presentation a few times before you submit your final version.
